A: The OED explains As used in the law, the term barefaced lie has been interpreted (1853)

as ‘a lie told by a person with a guilty knowledge or conscience’ or ‘with an intention to deceive’, and (1895) ‘with intent to deceive, and without reasonable excuse or excuse of sufficient validity’; ‘a lie that is obvious, simple, and deliberate, calculated to deceive unsuspecting or incapable people’. mTimer is an easy to use time tracking application. A countdown timer is used to keep track of how much time you have left to complete a task, or to start a timer. The timer has a blue indicator that turns red as the time you have left on the task expires. When the timer expires, it will play a sound and the countdown timer will restart. You can also set the timer to auto-restart at a time interval. The countdown timer can be set to last for a couple of seconds, or for five full minutes. You can also add an extra time to the timer. You can add the timer to the homescreen or the taskbar. The timer also has a useful feature that allows you to track how many times the timer has been used. The counter will increment each time the timer is used. You can also add a title to the timer that will show up in the taskbar. This timer can be downloaded for free from the CNET Marketplace.
