What's new:

(2019-18) Saturday, 2nd Jan 2018 The Dental Therapy Pathway was first introduced in 2010 as the Pathway to a Dental Therapy (PTAT) before getting rebranded as the Dental Therapy Pathway (DTP) in 2013. In 2017, the DTP was renamed as BQA (or Blended Quizz Adventure). What gives?!? In June 2018, the QEP finally announced that the name changes was “part of an extensive rebranding of the BQA and the awarding of the new LDC licence to the Australasian Dental Council.” The rebranding will result in a name change and style guide (although some style guide changes were already in place a year ago). Our explanation of the changes is reprinted below. Whilst the name has changed, the core curriculum has not. It remains a 2 year (PY) path and many of the skills, assessments and the range of courses offered are unchanged. Any references to the BQA from now on will refer to the blended path. The name change was, of course, brought to our attention on social media: And the rebranding has certainly made an appearance on social media of late, confirming the changes, at least: Everyone’s questions about the name change brought to our attention via social media: Brisbane’s dental therapist Facebook: Northside Dental VIC (Australia): Brisbane Dental Guild needs clarification from AUSTLIC. Can we switch to BQA, or did they pick a new name that we have to use? Are we now definitely continuing with the same national QEP curriculum? So what is a blended therapy? The Pathway is not blended; it is adapted. One practice may adapt nationally accredited courses, whilst another in another city may be adapted locally. Qualification outcomes remain a nationally accredited path. What changes have been made? The Pathway is now The Dental Therapy Pathway (DTP) The retained point of origin is the Dental Therapy Pathway. Course structure has changed to: 90 credits DTP 1st year, 18 credits, 15 credits online (read this blog post for more information on the 18 credit pathway) 2nd year, 92 credits
