Heart's Medicine GameScoringHeart's Medicine is a companion game that can be played online or offline. It is a top-down strategic action/puzzle game set in the unique setting of the Heart Clinic. Play as Doctor Eric Taylor, a heart surgeon who has discovered the tragic truth about his family's medical history and learned that his late mother may have been suffering from a life-threatening disease. Under the pressure of the Heart Clinic's arrogant director Paul Rutherford and his own disgrace, Eric takes the only option: to kill his mother by a knife as she lies in a hospital bed. Your objectives are to find the truth, save yourself and the only person that you care about - his late mother.

Unique features In Heart's Medicine you are a heart surgeon who specializes in cardiac surgery. There are many different tools to work with during surgery, as well as various puzzles that are necessary to complete. The game contains many hidden surprises and a unique plot. Your progress is monitored, and you can never die. The gameplay is challenging, but it will become more relaxing and calming with time.

Game Mechanics(Passives) During the game, you will experience many different situations, which can and will sometimes happen again. Every single one of them gives you the chance to use your skills to figure out what is happening. Some situations will last for just a few minutes. Others will be endless, and some can even be deadly. Every time you face a puzzle, the same set of rules is in place: it is important that you figure out how to solve it as soon as possible.

What's new in Wild West Crops:

1 Something very odd is happening to the Americans over the past few weeks. A veteran troublemaker named Dennis Kucinich is leading a well-organized campaign to make economic reform the key issue for this November's presidential election. Because it is so popular, this story is worth reporting, at least to the point of saying that reform advocates are taking a good long look at Kucinich's prospects. "He's got great organization, and people are not really registered to vote yet," says a pro-reg reform Democrat who wishes to remain anonymous. "Very good chances of winning" are his exact words. Reformers are hoping that they are on the verge of a great "can't miss" opportunity. "I think we could get into ten to twenty states, maybe more--easily," predicts an impassioned reformer. "If we were successful, we could win the presidency. That's pretty impressive." The idea, these reformers would argue, is that without a major reform to get more Americans to the polls, they will not vote for a reformer. Thus, the odds of a reformer coming to power will be slim. If everything is on track, Dennis Kucinich will win the Presidency by running as the only candidate carrying the total reform mandate. This stance, they claim, will impress millions of Americans who will be inspired to change their political judgment by seeing what a "clean, pure reform" candidate is capable of achieving. Those who make this argument insist that 1988 will be "the most important election of our times." William. J. Casey, who would succeed the disgraced K. Walter Deely as reform governor, said on August 29 that he would support Dennis Kucinich in a presidential run: "Of all the Democrats running for president, Dennis has the best chance of winning." What makes this hope realistic? Here is one of the biggest hurdles that reformers are facing: The general public has no idea what they would like in a reformer. "We need a hero," says Kucinich. Of course, they need more than a hero. More details can be found in our book....Kucinich's Campaign: Why the Democrats Must Win. What are the odds that a revolution like the one that led to the triumph of Soviet Communism will ever be repeated? Reformers are dreaming that we are working on the chopping block. They are actually imagining the fall of apartheid in South Africa

This is our first retro game, released by sarkoskitte games in 2015. It was also released in spanish and french. The game was developed with the help of Greenlight for PC and is now also ported to the Nintendo Switch. How to play: In the game it's up to you. You have 4 life points, you have to avoid them getting eaten. Different enemies are requiring your life. The game includes the "Nega" enemy type that damages a number of life points and puts you to sleep. While in sleep mode you can't do anything, but your life points will heal back up until you wake up, so watch out for them. If the phone rings it can be a cake or a dragon. Once a cake lands on you you can eat it. If a dragon lands on you you have a 1/4 chance to escape or you will be eaten. It will always be a cake. The background music is a combination of the song "Antwerp" by the band "Cocacola" and the song "Kill the Lights" by the band "Of Monsters and Men". Both are songs that i found in a very good mood, and their music makes the game even better. Feedback, comments, suggestions and any other kind of help is very much appreciated. Need help to translate the game to your language? We have a German version for "Duck and Egg", if you want it in your language, and here you can find all of our games (that we have finished and will be released), without having to use the search engine. - We have a Discord server that can give you tips and help on any problem of the game. - See the Steam page for a news and updates on the game. - We also publish regularly here about our games and the development. See here for all the information you need: If you like the game, it would be great if you could give us a review on Steam. Since we are a newcomer, we would love for you to be our first 5 to 10 friends, to get some kind of activation, but no promises if that works. If you give us more than that, it could make our game be better. What we are looking for in regards to beta testers and publishing: - You
