Trending Schools Division I | Football Irish Still a Playmaker May 31, 2012 | By USA TODAY The Irish may not have the numbers that were in their favor a year ago, but their playmaking is as good as ever. Freshman quarterback Brec McDowell has been steadily improving, while true freshman Jordan Lynch has shown flashes of brilliance. The running game has been established, while the o-line is pushing harder to protect the quarterback. Offensive coordinator Mike Sanford is already running a version of his Temple system at Notre Dame; remember all the connections to Bob Davie? And "The Process" has been put in place; there are no quick fixes for this team. So while the numbers will likely be harder to come by in 2012, the Irish will still be
