click, play or skip. and if it is an old game from early '80s, it must be DOS based minesweeper game, as i recall it, the game had few graphics at all, and all you did is click to mark squares, and when you use your mouse, it will highlight (blue) on the squares you have marked. As stated above, in a game called "Minesweeper" which I remember playing in the '80s, you clicked on cells or squares to mark them and a cursor would appear indicating where you clicked. Thanks for the tips. Sutter: "It was a game that went with the company". Kramer: "It's a stock game with no creativity in it". Sutter: "You gotta man the minefield!". Kramer: "I don't need a minesweeper I need an AB. Expletive. Expletive. Expletive."
