And it's free. Since the app creation process is only a small fraction of the development process for a mobile app, it's a very important part of the process. As we create new apps for ourselves and clients, we often come across the same frustrations and challenges. All code contributed to Sketch53 is always under the Apache 2.0 license. Any contributions you make to this open source project are welcomed and appreciated. "It's free" Since Sketch53 is built in the browser, there's no additional server-side component so you don't have to worry about network speed or slow load times. We want Sketch53 to work everywhere without any additional software, so it can be completely free. Setting up a new project Sketch53 is a web service, so it can run on any server you have access to. Just think about it as a web-based version of Photoshop. To get started, you'll just need to provide a website URL to start sketching. Once you sign up, you'll have a username and password. You'll also have the ability to choose a level of security, from "Public" to "Private." Sketch53 will only ever see a small amount of information about you to keep you safe. For example, you can change the sketch text to anything you'd like. In addition to that, you can restrict Sketch53's permissions to only be able to take screen shots or have access to your camera roll. Creating a new project Creating
