George Allison University of Illinois at Chicago.Incidence of acute drug-induced liver injury related to the use of traditional Chinese medicines during pregnancy: A retrospective observational study. The use of traditional Chinese medicines during pregnancy has been widely reported in the literature. However, the precise incidence of acute drug-induced liver injury (A-DILI) related to the use of traditional Chinese medicines during pregnancy remains unknown. We retrospectively reviewed the medical records of pregnant women who were admitted to 1 hospital in Southern Taiwan from January 2010 to December 2015. A-DILI-related cases were identified, and patient data were reviewed for maternal demographic characteristics, traditional Chinese medicine use, and clinical outcomes. A total of 61 pregnant women were identified during the study period, and most (97.5%) were in their
